

Stillwater Cove Regional Park

Located on the rugged and scenic Sonoma Coast, Stillwater Cove Regional Park features ocean access and more than 3 miles of trails. A 1.6-mile loop follows Stockhoff Creek, which supports coho salmon and steelhead trout, and curves through a canyon of towering redwoods filled with ferns, rhododendrons and other riparian plants, including the swamp harebell and fringed corn lily native only to the Sonoma-Mendocino coasts. A short spur trail leads to one-room Fort Ross schoolhouse, which was built at Fort Ross in 1885, and was moved to Stillwater Cove Regional Park in 1974 for preservation. Another trail crosses Highway 1 to the beach at Stillwater Cove, a popular destination for fishing, abalone diving, ocean kayaking, tidepooling, and picnicking. An inland campground offers 23 sites, available for year-round reservations, and one hike/bike site (first-come/first served). Dogs on leash are welcome in all areas of the park.
